FREE META ADS REVIEW

Your Facebook & Instagram ads, reviewed

Prepared for Platinum Wellness Spa · Conyers, GA

DATE	BASED ON	PREPARED BY
October 2026	Public Ad Library + website	Prriyankarr, BrightPeak Ads

The short version

Platinum Wellness Spa is actively advertising: a Non-Surgical Facelift offer ($299, usually $700) started in mid to late October, and a "Personalized Wellness Evaluation" ad running since September 12. Both collect contact details and promise that your team will reach out, so how fast you follow up decides how many become appointments. The ads also run under two page names, which is worth tidying up.

What we looked at

Active ads	At least 8 active ads in Meta's Ad Library across two Facebook pages
Facelift offer	5 ads from the "Platinum Beauty Bar and Spa" page (started October 13 to 26, 2026): Non-Surgical Facelift with microneedling, $299 (usually $700), Get Offer button
Wellness evaluation	3 ads from the "Platinum Wellness Spa" page (started September 12, 2026): Learn More button, then a contact form
Where clicks go	Facelift ads go to platinumwellnessspa.clinicpromo.com; the ad says "Wait for our team to contact you"
Website booking	Book buttons on your site go to your envisiongo booking page; homepage says "A minimum 50% deposit is required for all bookings"
Other ways to book	(770) 800-7500, info@platinumbbs.com, contact form; 1990 Parker Rd SE, Conyers, GA

What we found and how to fix it

1 Follow up on every ad lead within minutes

HIGH PRIORITY

WHAT WE SAW Both offers ask people to leave their details and say your team will contact them; neither lets them book a time right away.

WHY IT MATTERS People who fill out a form are most interested in the first few minutes. Every hour of waiting makes them less likely to answer, and the ad money spent on them is lost.

THE FIX Text each new lead within 5 minutes with a link to your booking page. If they don't book, call the same day and follow up once the next day.

2 Your ads run under two different names

MEDIUM PRIORITY

WHAT WE SAW	The facelift ads come from a page called "Platinum Beauty Bar and Spa" but are signed "Team @ Platinum Wellness Spa." The evaluation ads come from a page called "Platinum Wellness Spa."
WHY IT MATTERS	People see the page name first. Two names for one business can make them unsure who they're dealing with, especially for a $299 treatment.
THE FIX	Run all ads from one page with your current name, or rename the older page to match.

3 Mention the 50% deposit before people book

MEDIUM PRIORITY

WHAT WE SAW	Your homepage says "A minimum 50% deposit is required for all bookings," but the ad text doesn't mention it.
WHY IT MATTERS	Someone who claims a $299 offer and only learns about a deposit later may back out. Knowing up front means the people who book are ready to pay.
THE FIX	Add one line about the deposit to the follow-up text, or to the offer page.

4 The evaluation ad has run unchanged for 6 weeks

LOW PRIORITY

WHAT WE SAW	The three "Personalized Wellness Evaluation" ads started September 12 and share the same long text, and still say "limited number of new clients this week."
WHY IT MATTERS	People who see the same ad for weeks start to ignore it, and "this week" stops being believable.
THE FIX	Refresh the image or video and the opening line every few weeks, and match the urgency wording to a real deadline.

Quick wins for this week

1. Set up an instant text reply to every new ad lead with your booking link.
2. Rename or retire the "Platinum Beauty Bar and Spa" page so all ads show one name.
3. Add one line about the 50% deposit to the follow-up text.
4. Make a fresh version of the September evaluation ad.
